EVENING NOTICES.

PENNSYLVANIA ELECTION.—By the Pittsburgh Mail, we have the result in Beaver and Allegheny counties. The Whigs successful in both.—In Pittsburgh the vote was small, so in Beaver county, which accounts for the diminished majorities. We are prepared to hear of the triumphant success of the Loco Foco party in the State by the following remarks of the Philadelphia Sentinel, a paper that never speaks at random. In noticing the election of Inspectors that paper says:

The result of the Ward and Township elections in the city and county of Philadelphia, on Friday last, has greatly inspired the friends of the national and state administrations, and encouraged many of them to believe, what they had scarcely ground even to hope, that they will succeed, on Tuesday next, in electing those officers who are to be voted for by the city and county jointly.

The returns of the township elections in the interior of the State, so far as received, show that the democrats are going on in the confidence of victory, and that their opponents are every where divided, dispirited and anticipating defeat.

ERIE COUNTY PA.—We learn by the Erie Gazette that the Whig ticket is elected in Erie county by about 400 majority.

LOSS BY THE FIRES.—The N. Y. Commercial states that a letter from a very respectable house in Philadelphia says—'The entire loss by the fire, in merchandise and real estate, cannot exceed $1,400,000.'

That paper of Tuesday says the total loss in New York is estimated at about one million of dollars. Total insurances $631,500.

U. S. TROOPS.—Col. Fanning's Regiment of Artillery came up the Lake this morning on the Cleveland. Capt. Monroe's Company landed here, and have taken quarters in the Mechanic's Block. The rest of the troops are to be stationed at Detroit and Fort Gratiot. There were some 5 or 600 on board the Cleveland.

☞ Willis has written much gossip from Europe during his present tour, that is about in character with the tattle of the Trollopes and Fidlers about Americans, but here is a picture, from one of his 'Jottings Down,' that every lover of old fashioned quietude and devotion can appreciate. It is life-like and truly beautiful.

Some of the most delightful events in one's travels are those which afford the least material for description, and such is our sejour of a few days at the Vicarage of B——. It was a venerable old house with pointed gables, elaborate and pointed windows, with panes of glass of the size of the palm of the hand, low doors, narrow staircases, all sorts of unsuspected rooms, and creepers outside, trelliced, and trained to every corner and angle. Then there was the modern wing with library and dining room, large windows, marble fire-places, and French paper, and in going from your bed-room to breakfast, you might fancy yourself stepping from Elizabeth's time to Victoria's. A high hedge of holly divided the smoothly shaven lawn from the churchyard, and in the midst of the moss-grown head-stones stood a grey old church with four venerable towers, one of the most picturesque and beautiful specimens of the old English architecture that I have ever seen. The whole group, church, vicarage, and a small hamlet of vine covered and embowered stone cottages, lay in the lap of a gently rising sweep of hills, and all around were spread landscapes of the finished and serene character peculiar to England—rich fields framed in flowing hedges, clumps of forest trees, glimpses of distant parks, country seats, and village spires, and on the horizon a line of mist-clad hills, scarce ever more distinct than the banks of low-lying clouds retiring after a thunder storm in America.

Early on Sunday morning we were awakened by the melody of the bells in the old towers, and with brief pauses between the tunes, they were played upon most musically, till the hour for the morning services. We have little idea in America of the perfection to which the chiming of bells is carried in England. In the towers of this small rural church are hung eight bells of different tone, and the tunes played on them by the more accomplished ringers of the neighboring hamlet, are varied endlessly. I lay and listened to the simple airs as they died away over the valley with a pleasure I can scarcely express. The morning was serene and bright, the perfume of clematis and clematis and jasamine flowers at the window, penetrated to the curtains of my bed, and Sunday seemed to have dawned with the audible worship and palpable incense of Nature. We were told at breakfast that the chimes had been unusually merry, and were a compliment to ourselves, the villagers always expressing thus their congratulations on the arrival of guests at the Vicarage. The compliment was repeated between churches, and a very long peal rang in the twilight—our near relationship to the Vicar's family authorising a very special rejoicing.

The interior of the church was very ancient looking and rough, the pews of unpainted oak, and the massive stone walls simply white-washed. The congregation was small, perhaps fifty persons, and the men were (with two exceptions) dressed in russet carter's frocks, and most of them in leather leggings. The children set on low benches placed in the centre of the one aisle, and the boys, like their fathers, were in smock frocks of homespun, their heavy shoes shod with iron like horses hoofs, and their little legs buttoned up in the impenetrable gaiters of coarse leather. They looked, men and boys, as if they were intended to wear but one suit in this world.

I was struck with the solemnity of the service, and the decorous attention of men, women and children, to the responses. It was a beautiful specimen of simple and pastoral worship. Each family had the name of their farm or place of residence printed on the back of the pew, with the number of seats to which they were entitled, probably in proportion to their tithes. The 'living' is worth if I remember right not much over a hundred pounds—an insufficient sum to support so luxurious a vicarage as is appended to it, but happily for the people, the vicar chances to be a man of fortune, and he unites in his excellent character, the exemplary pastor with the physician and lord of the manor. I left B.——with the conviction that if peace, contentment, and happiness, inhabit one spot more than all others in a world, whose allotments are so difficult to estimate, it is the vicarage in the bosom of that rural upland.

THANKSGIVING.—Gov. Everett has appointed Thursday the 28th day of Novembember next, as the annual Thanksgiving day in Massachusetts. His Proclamation indicates a devout and truly thankful heart. Gov. Ellsworth of Connecticut has appointed the same day. This time-honored New England custom of setting apart a day of general thanksgiving after the in-gathering of the harvest, is worthy of imitation throughout the land.

CINCINNATI PROVISION MARKET.—The Gazette of the 8th quotes flour at $4 to 4,06, dull, stock light and prices a downward tendency; wheat 68 to 70 cents; corn 45 to 50 cents; clear pork $19 to 20; mess $13 to 15. The River lower than it has been before this season, and declining rapidly. Only about 30 inches in the channel.

THE FASTEST YET.—The Cleveland so far outstripped Kendall's mail this morning, that the latter fell behind into the dock. New York sheets were delivered here one dip wetter than issued from the press.

☞ The Steam Ship Liverpool had not arrived at New York when the Albany boats left on Tuesday evening.

☞ The following pathetic scene occurred recently at Perth, Upper Canada. The prisoner was indicted for the murder of his son-in-law.

Perhaps we should notice that during the investigation, the widow of the deceased, who was at the same time the daughter of the prisoner, was, on the part of the defence, brought into Court to be sworn. She appeared in mourning—pale, thin and gratefy discomposed; and it was only with exertion on her part, that she could keep composed enough to speak; however, nothing very material was elicted from her. Her feelings frequently overcame her, and she burst out into loud sobs, at one of which times she cast her eyes upon the prisoner, and screeched 'father, father!' The Court, of course, ordered her removal; she had to pass her father, to whom she extended her hand in the midst of her sobs and shrieks of 'father, father!' The old man, in tears, reached out his hand to his widowed daughter; the hand which, at the instigation of his heart, had been the means alike of her misery and his own—she received it, and was taken away. The scene was tragical, and though between these humble individuals, brought the tears to many an eye.—Brockville Recorder.

STAR-SPANGLED BANNER.

One of our contemporaries, in re-publishing a day or two ago the justly admired and well known poetical effusion under this title, stated that its author, FRANCIS S. KEY Esq. was a prisoner on board one of the British bomb ships in the Patapsco, when he wrote it. This is a mistake. The song in question was originally published, we find on reference to our files, in the American of the 21st September 1814—a week after the bombardment of Fort McHenry, and the circumstances under which it was composed are thus stated in the introductory editorial paragraph which then accompanied it. Mr. KEY now fills the office of U. S. District Attorney for the District of Columbia:—Balt. American.

'DEFENCE OF BALTIMORE.—The annexed song was composed under the following circumstances:—A gentleman had left Baltimore, in a flag of truce for the purpose of getting released from the British fleet a friend of his who had been captured at Marlborough. He went as far as the mouth of the Pautuxent, and was not permitted to return lest the intended attack on Baltimore should be disclosed. He was therefore brought up the Bay to the mouth of the Patapsco, where the flag-vessel was kept under the guns of a frigate, and he was compelled to witness the bombardment of Fort McHenry, which the Admiral had boasted that he would carry in a few hours, and that the city must fall. He watched the flag at the Fort through the whole day, with an anxiety that can be better felt than described, until the night prevented him from seeing it. In the night he watched the bomb shells, and at early dawn his eye was again greeted by the proudly waving flag of his country.'

O! say can you see, by the dawn's early light,
What so proudly we hailed at the twilight's last gleaming,
Whose broad stripes and bright stars thro' the perilous fight,
O'er the ramparts we watch'd were so gallantly streaming?

And the rockets' red glare, the bombs bursting in air,
Gave proof through the night that our flag was still there;
Oh! say does the Star spangled Banner yet wave,
O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave?

On the shore dimly seen, through the mist of the deep,
Where the foe's haughty host in dread silence reposes,
What is that which the breeze, o'er the towering steep,
As it fitfully blows, half conceals, half discloses?

Now it catches a gleam of the morning's first beam,
In full glory reflected, now shines on the stream.
'Tis the Star spangled Banner, O! long may it wave,
O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave.

And where is that band, who so vauntingly swore,
That the havoc of war and the battle's confusion,
A home and a country shall leave us no more?
Their blood has washed out their foul footstep's pollution.

No refuge could save the hireling and slave,
From the terror of flight, or the gloom of the grave,
And the Star spangled Banner in triumph shall wave,
O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave.

O! thus be it ever when freemen shall stand,
Between the loved home and the war's desolation,
Blest with victory and peace may the heaven rescu'd land,
Praise the Power that hath made and preserved us a nation!

Then conquer we must, when our cause it is just,
And this be our motto—'In God is our trust!'
And the Star spangled Banner in triumph shall wave,
O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave.

CERTIFICATES.
FEVER AND AGUE CURED.
To Dr. Hunt—
Dear Sir: Believing it a duty I owe you as a successful practitioner, as well as those who may be similarly afflicted, I take pleasure in acknowledging the benefit I have derived from the use of your valuable Medicine, Hunt's Botanic Pills. After much suffering from Fever and Ague, during the spring and fall, for the last four years, and the pecuniary injuries attendant on the indisposition of one whose exertions a large family was dependant for support, and having without success tested the skill of many medical advisers, at an expense I could not well afford.—In the fall of 1838, finding the premonitory symptoms of the disease approaching, I was induced by a friend who had tried your medicine, to purchase a package of your Botanic Pills, and now have the
