CONGRESS.

House of Representatives, May 24.
REPORT ON MR. EDWARDS'S MEMURIAL Mr. LIVINGSTON, from the Committee of inwestigation in the case of the memorial of Ninian Edwards, made a report, observing, that it gave him satisfaction to state, that there were, in the committee, no dissentient voice in adopting the official the particulars for to-day, the injunction
official the particulars for to-day, the injunction
official the particulars for to-day, the injunction of secrecy was removed, in the Senate, from so much of the Executive Proceedings as relates to report.

[The report is of toe great length for insertiou to-day. The following is the recapitulation and conclusion of it.]

"Referring to what has been said in the introduction to his report, and repeating that Mr. Edwards has not had an opportunity of supporting his charges by his presence and testimony, the result of the facts which have appeared to the committee, thus far, in this investigation, and of their deductions from them, when applied to the reca-pitulation of charges, as stated at the end of the Address, is. First, that the evidence referred to, and examined, does not support the charge of having mis-managed the public funds.

Second, That the uncurrent notes, mentioned

In the second charge, appear, by evidence satisfactory to the Committee, to have been received and deposited by the Public Receivers, at a time when they were receivable under the resolution of Congress of 1816; that, in the principal case, that of the Bank of Missouri, the Bank did not make of the Bank of Missouri, the Bank of the Make itself responsible for such notes as cash, and therefore the Secretary was bound to receive them from the Bank; that, although the Banks of Tombeckbe and Edwardsville were liable to account for such deposites, as eash, if the construction which the committee gives to their contracts be correct, yet that both the Secretary and the Banks expressed a different opinion ns to the meaning of those contracts; and that the Secretary, in receiving $15,000 from the one, and $20,000 from the other of those Banks, appears to have acted according to what he supposed to be the rights of the parties, and with a proper regard to the interest of the United States, under the circumstances which then

Third, That no intentional misstatement has been made to the House of the amount of uncurrent bills received from the Banks, although a sum of $230 of such bills was omitted through mistake Fourth. That, although the Secretary may have misconstructed the effect of some of the contracts with the Banks to the extent before mentioned, the committee find no grounds for the charge that he has misrepresented them, inasmuch as the con-tracts themselves were submitted with his report to the House.

Fifth, That the Secretary did omit to communicate to Congress the reason which led him to di-rect the deposite of public moneys in the three local Banks of Chilicothe, Cincinnati, and Louisville, where the Bank of the United States had branches; but there is no reason for supposing that any concealment was Intended, or that the omission was occasioned by design. Sixth, That in some instances, papers called for by resolutions of the House, have not been communicated with other papers sent in answer to such calls, but that these omissions have hap pened either from accident, or from a belief that the papers, so omitted, were immaterial, or no called for ; and that there is no evidence that any document or information has been withheld fro improper motives.

Having atready expressed the opinion that this investigation ought not to be terminated, until th person pressing the charges shall have been ex amined, and regretting the circumstances whic render such an examination impracticable, dor ing the present session of Congress, and thinking that Mr. Edwards may be expected at Washing. ton within a few days, the Committee feel it the thuty to recommend to the House that they be required to sit, after the adjournment, for the purpose of taking his examination, if an opportunity shall be presented."

Mr. Livingston moved that the report be laid or the table and printed. Mr. Forsyth hoped that a copy would be sent, y order of the House, to the President of the United States.

The question was divided, and being first pu on laving the report on the table, it was carried Mr. Gook expressed an intention to address the House, should the report be called up for consideration, and hoped it would be printed in time.

The question on printing was then put and carried.

Mr. Livingston then offered, by direction of the committee, the following:

"Ordered, That the Committee, to which was referred the address of Ninian Edwards, be required to alt after the adjournment of the House for such time as shall be necessary, in their judgment, for further examination; that any additional states to both may be made by them. he filed in al report which may he made by them, he filed in the office of the Clerk of the House; and that any three members of the committee be a quorum for the transaction of business."

be suffered to lie on the table for one day. Mr. Taylor hoped that the House was propared to act on the resolution without delay.

Mr. McDuffie moved to lay it on the table; and the question being put, it was carried—ayes 92.

Mr. Forsyth then moved that a copy of this report be transmitted by the Clerk of this House to the President of the United States. He observed that the same courtesy which hall dictated the former communication, when the memorial was presented, and the committee had sent for Mr. Edwards, was proper on the present occasion. Mr. Wobster said, that, with great deference to the honorable gentleman from Georgia, it appeared to him that, when the resolution proposed in the report of the committee should be adopted, it would then be proper to make such communication, but not in the present stage of proceedings.

Mr. Forsyth then moved to lay the resolution he offered on the table till the determination of the House with respect to that reported by the committee, should be known. Agreed to.

From the National Intelligencer, May 25. There is a rule of Congress, applicable to both Houses, which declares, that "No bill that shall have passed one House, shall be sent for concurrence to the other, on either of the three last days of the session." The day for adjournment for the present session, being fixed for Thurday the 27th, yesterday was, of course, the last on which bills setted in the House in which bills could be passed in the House in which they origin. ated. Every bill, therefore, in either House, not yet acted upon, is beyond the power of Congress for the present session. Among the subjects thus postponed to the next session, or virtually rejected, are many of considerable importance, which it has not been the pleasure of Congress to act upon. The attentive rea-der, recollecting what has heretofore been finally acted uponin either House, and looking at the business which was transacted yesterday, will be able at once to ascertain the fate of any measure in which he may take an interest. Among the bills and propositions thus laid over, the following may deserve particular enumeration :

The bill to reduce into one the several acts es-tablishing and regulating the Post-Office Depart-of secrecy was removed, in the Senate, from so much of the Executive Proceedings as relates to the Treaty lately concluded at London, between Mr. Rush and Mr. S. Canning, Representatives of the United States and Great Britain, having for its object a co-operation of measures for the further suppression of the Slave Trade. In our next, we shall publish the particulars as far as we can obtain thom. For the present we can only say, that the Treaty met with very scrious opnosition. that the Treaty met with very serious opposition in the Senate; that it was finally ratified by that body, by a barely constitutional unjority, after receiving several modifications, the most essential of which limits its duration to the pleasure of the parties, making it an experimental measure, rather than a permanent law for the government of

The U. S. Frigate John Adams is expected to return to the United States, with Com. Porter, from the West India Station in all next month.

The Tariff .- Since this important act of congress, about which the whole session has been employed, has now become a law, our readers may wish to know some of its provisions. We have accordingly given some of the most important items, with their rates of duties as provided for by this bill, and as they stood under the law of 1816. The friends of the Tariff, will be disappointed that no more has been done, in aid of this great and important object. It is hoped, however, that with this little aid, (and it is little aid) that they may be encouraged to still progress with their business, and not stop their works, as we understand is the case with some, on account of the small encouragement afforded by the provisions of the bill.

Extract of a letter from a gentleman in New-York to his friend in this vity.

"I have always been led to suppose till very ecently, that the Hartford Convention was a sebody, met for treasonable purposes, and that, when together, though every thing was carefully kept out of sight that savoured of such a character, they undoubtedly did commit more than one treasonable act against the government. I am happy, however, to have it in my power to say, that this was not the fact; and I am waranted in this assertion by the most unquestions. ble evidence. On Saturday last, I was informed ov a distinguished patriot in this city, that the Hartford Convention had a narrow escape at the time they were in session, and that nothing saved them from externation, but the fact that they elop-ped short of any overlast of treason—that four hundred and thirty men were actually enrolled, and all ready at a moment, in case any treasnu-able act was committed, to cut them up root and branch. Upon my expressing some doubts about the accuracy of this statement, my informant Imthenwelves in Hartford for the purpose mentione -that one hundred and twenty of them placed themselves under his immediate command, twenty of whom were federalists, and bad belonged to a military company which he had commanded, and he knew them to be good men and true. As the gentleman's appearance was not that of a very high military cast, I had the curiosity to en quire what his name was, and was told it was Major Henry Seymour!!! My conclusion, then, I think perfectly legitimate, that no treasonable act could have been committed by the Hariford Convention, because none of them were killed by this formidable military force, under such a resolute and able commander.

1, am inclined to think, that no body of men eve existed, who were so peaceably inclined, as that Convention, that were placed amidst so many hazards. I have always understood that N. G. -m, who, every body knows, is a man of desperate courage, as well as unsulled purity and patriotism, actually went to Hartford when the Convention was in session, for the sole purpose of watching their conduct, and inflicting upon them some exemplary punishment; in case he could get a chance. It is well known; that a still greater The bill taying duties on sales at auction.

COMMUNICATION.

44 We well know, that at this moment there is scarcely a Power in Europe that is not collecting.

The Steam Boat Oliver Ellsworth, on her last from the capitalists of Great Britain the sleews of trip from New-York, before she entered the river war—there is scarcely a Power that does not look broke one of her crauks which connects the water for resources to the Exchequer of our Exchange wheel. From her performance up the river it was that our monied men land indiscriminately to al wheel. From her performance up the river it was considered expedient to run her back to New-York where she could be more easily repaired. The corresponding crank of the other wheel however, owing to a flaw in the custing, gave way when the boat was about two miles below Middletown, in consequence of which accident sweering leaves of the machinery have become injured. The passengers were all safely landed, and the hoat has proceeded to New-York with the help of the Eill, I may look for security in the morality the Experiment, and every exection will be made of our money-lenders.
